'LET'S BIN OUR RUBBISH'

This street in Dover is typical of the sight greeted by people across the town on the night they put their rubbish out. Seagulls are being blamed and supporters say wheelie bins are the only answer. Others say some people in the town just don't care.

LD LINES' Dover to Dieppe service has been scrapped after failing to attract enough business.

The decision was made just four months after the service was launched by the Port of Dover's newest ferry operator.

Nick Stevens, spokesperson for LD Lines, said although bosses at the company were disappointed, the demand for a Dieppe route was not there.

"The decision has been taken entirely for commercial reasons, in that the service has quite simply not generated enough traffic to justify continuing, particularly for freight, that the company hoped it would," he said.

The Cote d'Albatre ferry took four hours 15 minutes to make the crossing to Dieppe and made one return trip every night.

At the launch of the Dieppe route in February, LD Lines' managing director Christophe Santoni said: "Freight and tourist customers will be saving 250km drive time by using this service and the route will create an innovative travel choice for customers whose onward destinations are the west and south west of France and Spain."

But the ferry crossed to Dieppe for the last time on Friday and will now be used solely for the Dover to Boulogne service twice a day alongside the fast-ferry Norman Arrow which provides four return crossings a day.

Meanwhile, LD Lines' boss Christophe Santoni has threatened to take legal action against French union members after they

SUPPORT: The Flack were thrilled to make the top five in the Live and Unsigned contest

Flack on track for album after place in finals

■ BY MARIJKE COX

AN INDIE band from Dover has stormed to victory in the UK's Live and Unsigned competition.

The Flack, made up of lead singer and guitarist Chris Maclean, 23, from St Margaret's, drummer Joe Fendt, 29, guitarist Richard Harvey, 28, both from Deal, and bass guitarist Steve Cheyne, 24, from Sandwich, wowed judges at the final in Portsmouth on Saturday.

The group, who formed in 2008, beat rivals at the nail-biting show to be chosen alongside four others as the top five unsigned acts in the UK. Despite not winning first place, the lads were happy with the outcome.

Chris said: "We got what we went for, which was much love and support from our friends and families."

"To be in the top five means the world to us."

Their sound is a mix of ska, punk, rock, mod and indie.

Former manager of the Sex Pistols Malcolm McLaren and Radio One DJ Annie Nightingale were impressed by the band's mix of beats and voted them into the top five.

Chris Grayston, another judge on the night and head of A&R at Future Music, said he admired the Flack.

"The standard this year was fantastic and the competition has just got bigger each year," he said.

The Flack made it through to the regional finals back in February after seeing off thousands of other musicians in their fight to the top.

More than 10,000 hopefuls competed for one of the 240 places at the auditions in April. They sailed through to the finals in Portsmouth.

Despite not winning the top spot that came with a recording contract, The Flack plan to release their own album this year. For more information go to www.myspace.com/the-flackband.

Wheelie bins 'the way to beat seagull mess'

■ BY MARIJKE COX

SEAGULLS are being blamed for helping make Dover's streets look like a rubbish dump – but wheelie bins could be the answer.

Discarded crisp packets, empty drinks cartons and food packaging across many of the town's roads has seen internet users voicing their upset and demanding better refuse services.

Others have stressed the need to put bin bags out as late as possible on collection day to try and stop seagulls rummaging in people's waste.

One forum member said it is only a matter of time before a child picks up rubbish discarded by the birds.

A spokesperson at Dover District Council agreed that seagulls are continuing to cause problems in the district, especially when bags are put out too early.

She said "It does make the council's job slightly more difficult, although this is not the main cause of street litter.

"It does increase the amount of work involved and so has some effect on costs and manpower."

Dover council is asking people to leave putting out their rubbish until as late as possible on collection day and to consider other containers.

The possibility of seagull-proof bags has not been looked into, but leader of the council Paul Watkins wrote on the Doverforum that the refuse contract was currently being looked at.

"Methods of collection are being reviewed

COMPLAINTS: Rubbish that falls out of black bags is attracting seagulls and foxes, says one resident recognising the points (forum members) make," he added.

But residents have blasted the way the waste service is managed.

Mathew Connor, who lives near the town centre, said: "When rubbish is collected sometimes bits are dropped on the floor attracting seagulls and foxes. "It's all very well telling people to take their bins out later but in some areas the rubbish is collected very early so people tend to put them out before they go to bed.

"Every home needs a wheelie bin, or at least in places where there is more of a problem."

The wishes of Dover residents differ from those of people living in Swale who have called for the return of the black sack after ongoing struggles with wheelie bins. Last week, Yoursware reported that residents find dealing with the plastic bins on collection day a "military operation".

Councillor's fears for young jobless

ONE of the district's newly-elected county councillors has spoken of her worries about the high number of unemployed young people in the area.

Julie Rook, pictured, who won her seat in last month's elections, said a report published by the Department for Children, Schools and Family has shown a sharp rise in 16- to 24-years-olds who are not in employment, education or training, known as NEET.

This follows the release of government figures two weeks ago showing the unemployment figure for the Dover district has risen to 2,328.

The number of residents claiming job-seekers allowance this time last year was 1,319 – 1,009 fewer people.

Cllr Rook, conservative KCC member for Deal and cabinet member on Dover District Council, said about one million young people across the UK are struggling to find work and are being let down by the government.

"Having teenage children myself, I am especially worried about what the future holds and the government needs to get a grip with this and act quickly before a whole generation of young people are lost to us," she said.

As an incentive for Dover employers, Jobcentre Plus is offering a recruitment and training subsidy if they take people on who have been looking for work for six months or more.

The subsidy is worth £1,000 and companies can also access up to £1,500 worth of in-house training.

Ferries boss slams French disruption

tried to disrupt crossings of the Norman Arrow for a second time, last week.

More than 100 protestors from the Confederation Francois Democratique du Travail (CFDT) demonstrated outside the Port of Boulogne claiming the new ferry firm had caused the downfall of SeaFrance.

They focused their attack on the new high-speed ferry which sails under the British flag.

But the disruptions, which came just a week after the first protests, failed to have an effect on crossings as French police formed a cordon enabling passengers to disembark.

Managing director of LD Lines Christophe Santoni has now launched a scathing attack on demonstrators stating that their behaviour was "disgraceful" and "misguided."

He said: "The latest behaviour of the CFDT union is totally irresponsible by claiming the British flag to be a 'Flag of Convenience.'

Mr Santoni said: "We are a company that believes in free and unrestricted competition and I find the attitude of this union utterly disgraceful and totally misguided."

Bring your antiques for valuation on TV

POPULAR antiques show Flog It! is on its way to Dover.

Presenter Paul Martin and his team of experts are setting up in Dover Town Hall from 9.30am-4.30pm on Sunday, July 5, and hope to turn collectables into cash.

The show has led to previous participants scooping thousands of pounds at auction.

People in the Dover district are being invited to bring along antiques and collectables they are interested in selling to see what they are worth.

Interviewed

Once valued, the owner and experts can then decide on whether it should go to auction at the Canterbury Auction Galleries on September 22.

Previous episodes have seen a ceramic bowl, bought from a car boot sale for £4, being sold for £1,500 and a Shelley tea set going for a tidy £3,400.

Paul Martin, who was discovered after being interviewed by BBC Bristol about his passion for oak furniture, is looking forward to coming to Dover.

He is frequently in and out of auction houses around the UK, meeting people through valuations or talking to craftsmen about their trades.

FLOG IT: The show's presenter, Paul Martin

He said: "I have learned so much. Meeting people in the antiques trade or people who make a living by skills learned over years is always a treat."

The show will be broadcast next year.

The event concludes a weekend of activities in Dover with Music in the Park, at Pencester Gardens, and Dover Carnival, on Saturday, July 4. Music in the Park, starting at 12.15pm, is organised by the Priory Forum.

Dover Carnival starts at 6pm from Lewisham Road to Market Square and then on to the town centre, finishing in Maison Dieu Road.

Duke honours Fusionman

TOP FLIGHT: Yves Rossy, right, with Prince Philip

A SWISS pilot who flew across the Channel strapped to a jet-powered wing has been honoured at Buckingham Palace.

Yves Rossy, known as Fusionman, became the first man to cross the 22 miles from Calais to Dover with a homemade, single jet wing in September 2008.

He was invited to receive an award from the Air League in honour of his flight.

American pilot Chesley Sullenberger, who successfully landed his Airbus A320 on the Hudson River in New York earlier this year, was among those honoured at the ceremony.

M. Rossy was presented with an award for "an outstanding contribution to aviation as the first man to fly the English Channel on a jet-powered wing" by the Duke of Edinburgh, patron of the Air League.

Sue takes the P&amp;O helm

A NEW director has taken over the running of ports and terminal operations at P&O Ferries.

Sue Mackenzie, who joined the company four years ago as general manager for Dover, Portsmouth and Tilbury services, replaces Terry Cairns who is retiring.

She was previously operations director at Luton Airport after a career with the Army, where she named best female student at Sandhurst and was the first female officer with the Scots Guards.

Trickle-flow adds to pressure on cheats

BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

WATER customers who refuse to pay their bills could see their supplies reduced to a trickle under new measures being discussed.

Folkestone and Dover Water Services (FDWS) has already indicated it would welcome the new enforcement powers "under the right circumstances and as a last resort" to stop abuse of the system.

This would see those who can pay but won't do so having to wait hours to fill their baths, endure dripping showers or spend ages topping up the kettle.

Under laws introduced in 1997, it is illegal for companies to simply cut off water supply to homes, which has been blamed for encouraging some customers to avoid paying.

This leaves water firms with millions of pounds of unpaid bills and the typical household facing an extra £11 a year on average.

A FDWS spokesman said: "Under the right circumstances and as a last resort, we would support the use of trickle-flow meters for those few customers with the means to pay who will not pay bills. It would be important to ensure the customer has the means to pay before this action was taken and a trickle-flow meter would only be installed after all other demands for payment had failed and after repeated attempts to contact the customer had produced no results."

WATER TORTURE: Some companies want the right to install trickle-flow to reduce non-payment of bills

...but drainage cost 'will finish off scout troops'

SCOUT groups in the Dover district could be at risk of closure if new drainage charges imposed by water companies are introduced, writes Marijke Cox.

Recent guidelines set out by water watchdog Ofwat could mean scout troops, churches and sports clubs which own or rent clubhouses face bills of up to £600 a year from 2010.

For many this will be the final nail in the coffin as they struggle to cover costs, with scout groups forced to charge higher membership fees.

Currently, non-domestic properties are calculated based on the rateable value of a property, meaning voluntary and community groups are often exempt from charges.

But new guidance to water companies states bills can now be based on the site area, so extra money could be charged to cope with rainfall running from huts or car parks into drains.

Christine Rackham, chairman of the committee for the 1st Deal Scout Group, said this will inevitably lead to financial difficulties.

"This is worrying because money is always a problem when you're relying on people paying subs each week," she said.

"We would have to put the fees up if the new charges come in."

Mrs Rackham, who has been part of the 1st Deal Scouts for nearly 30 years, said the move by water companies could see the demise of some of the district's scout groups. "We would hopefully be able to continue, but I imagine it would have an effect on some troops," she said.

Cllr Julie Rook – a county councillor for Deal and a district council cabinet member – is also concerned.

"Scouts find it hard enough to survive financially without having another stealth tax thrust upon them," she said.

"If this goes ahead I'm sure Ofwat will start to roll this out to all community groups which

The company is already undertaking a massive metering programme which will eventually see all properties in the district using a 'pay-as-you-go' system, after it was the first in the country to be granted water scarcity status in January 2007.

It also coincides with a complete rebranding for the 150-year-old supplier, which is changing its name to Veolia Water with effect from today (Wednesday).

It has been part of the Veolia Water UK group of companies for over two decades and managing director David Walton said this would not lead to it losing its local roots.

He said: "It's all very straightforward and we will ensure that the changes will be made at a zero cost to customers."

"Veolia is the global leader in environmental services and as part of that group we can access considerable expertise, which is invaluable in planning a long term secure high quality water supply for our area."

"We believe that by combining our local knowledge with global expertise we can deliver an outstanding level of service."

The draft Flood and Water Management Bill, which contains the trickle-flow proposal, is out for consultation until July 24. To comment on the bill, go to www.defra.gov.uk.

rent or lease buildings, which will inevitably lead to closures."

A Southern Water official said the company would look at all the options before making a final decision.

"It's clear that there may be some benefits from area-based charges, including better incentives for customers to modify their behaviour by putting in place environmentally sustainable drainage solutions," she said.

"Against that we know that the switch can lead to changes in some customers' bills, including those that may not be in a position to respond by altering their facilities."

"Should we decide to make a switch, we will ensure we are mindful of the impacts on particular customer groups and will take advantage of Ofwat's commitment to allow phasing in of new charges over a number of years to protect customers from unexpectedly large increases in their bills."

Stone's obscene 'art' on auction site

AN OBSCENE drawing by Chillenden murderer Michael Stone, pictured below, is being sold on eBay to raise cash to help the hammer killer.

Dr Shaun Russell, whose wife and daughter were killed by Stone, has described the sale as "repellent".

The picture has been advertised on the auction site by campaigner Alexander Baron, who believes Stone is innocent.

He runs a website which claims junkie Stone was wrongly convicted of the 1996 killing of Lin Russell, 45, and her daughter Megan, six. Her other daughter Josie, then nine, spent months fighting for life after the frenzied attack.

Mr Baron maintains Stone is innocent and claims another hammer killer could be guilty of the Chillenden assaults.

Dr Russell said: "My initial reaction to the cartoon and the reasons for selling it was that it is repellent and distasteful."

Mr Baron, from Sydenham, wrote to our sister paper Kent on Sunday about the eBay offer. On the sale, posted on the US site, the details read: "In 1997, Michael Stone was fitted up for a notorious double homicide known as the Chillenden Murders. Supporters need to raise fifty grand for DNA tests and to investigate leads Kent Police refuse to follow up."

The sale is due to end on today. As we went to press, the obscene cartoon, which has no artistic merit, had received no bids.

Rural guardian lashes council's housing plans

PLANS for more housing across the Dover district have suffered another blow after the Campaign to Protect Rural England condemned the strategy.

The Kent and Dover branches of the organisation have attacked the proposals as "high risk, undeliverable and inappropriate".

The local development framework, which sets out Dover District Council's housing plans for the next 20 years, could see more than 10,100 homes built by 2026 - with almost half of them in Whitfield.

Brian Lloyd, a senior planner with the CPRE, has criticised the scheme, calling it "fundamentally wrong" for the council to embark on such a "damaging" strategy.

Public consultation on the plans ended two months ago and the district council is now deciding on the final number of homes it says are needed in the district.

But the CPRE has called for the strategy to be scrapped all together.

Mr Lloyd said: "We have called on the council to abandon this damaging, high-growth strategy and adopt one that is in line with the South East plan and one that is focused on the regeneration of Dover town."

His comments follow the publication of the Government's final regional spatial strategy which shows a planning and transport policy for each South East region for the next 15 to 20 years. It sets out a figure for Dover of 10,100 homes based on the district's Growth Point status, a Government-led scheme which offers support to communities which are pursuing large-scale, sustainable development. The council is seeking to allocate land for up to 14,000 homes and deliver a minimum of 10,100 by 2026. Mr Lloyd said: "The strategy will mean significant encroachment into the countryside and the use of green field land."

■ BY MARIJKE COX

Charlie Elphicke, Tory parliamentary candidate for Dover and Deal, is concerned about the South East plan, stating there is a lack of infrastructure to handle such growth.

"This plan threatens Whitfield and overdevelopment in Sholden. Too many houses are being proposed by the Government.

"We should look to create jobs before houses. There seems little in the report on road upgrades. We really need to think about a link from the A256 to Sholden. That could improve access to Deal and help reduce accidents on the A258. We also need the A2 dualled all the way down to the port."

A council spokesman said all views would be taken into account, but that it was too early to comment on representations made.

"We welcome all feedback on the core strategy and the CPRE is entitled to make representations as part of this.

"However, the council has to consider all comments before it makes a decision.

"We have done so consistently in getting this far and the strategy was drawn up after one of the most comprehensive public consultation exercises ever undertaken."

Sarah's friends take hike in her memory

FRIENDS and workmates of a Dover woman who died of cancer trekked from the port to St Margaret's and back in her memory.

Sarah White, who worked for the Home Farm Trust which offers support for people with learning difficulties, died in September, aged 54.

Her husband Jim joined friends and colleagues on the walk, which raised £400 for Macmillan Cancer.

Gillian Orman, regional fundraiser at the trust, said: "We all miss Sarah's friendship, her common sense, kindness and dedication to HFT and the people it supports."

Visiting minister vows regeneration plans will go ahead

DOVER'S regeneration is a high priority for the Government, according to the minister for the South East.

Jonathan Shaw, who is also MP for Chatham and Aylesford, paid a visit to the town to hold a strategic summit with key stakeholders behind the development plans.

Officials from the district council, Kent County Council, Dover Pride and Dover Harbour Board took part in a tour of the sites.

Plans for the area include a multi-million pound expansion of the port, mass housing development, new supermarket, leisure facilities and retail park in the centre of town and the possibility of a cable car running from the docks to the Western Heights.

High priority

Mr Shaw told Yourdover: "This meeting is about ensuring that regeneration moves ahead as quickly as possible and that everyone is very much comfortable with what's happening."

"The high-speed rail link, which originally wasn't coming to Dover but now is, is an important part of this."

"The combination of this and the port is a very important step and is another reason for people to come in and invest."

"This is about making sure that all those involved in the process work together. Dover is a high priority for the Government."

After a tour of the sites, Mr Shaw hosted a summit meeting where key issues were considered, including skills, education, transportation, delivery and implementation.

His visit will come as welcome news to the community, which has been questioning when regeneration will start.

QUESTION & ANSWER

HESTER PHILLIPS

Q What is the best way to make your garden as friendly as possible for birds and animals?

A I always tell people they can do a lot of good just by being a bit lazy. If you leave some patches of grass to grow long or let piles of leaves collect, you'll attract insects, which provides food for birds and other wildlife.

If you relish a spot of gardening, trees like birch and rowan, or shrubs like pyracantha or hawthorn are good. Even some non-native flowers work well – buddleias and sedum attract butterflies. Plant one and you'll be able to measure its success instantly – sit back and watch as the butterflies flock to your handiwork.

Q What are the most common creatures that can be spotted in gardens in Kent?

A It can really depend on the garden itself – the more 'wildlife-friendly' features you've got, the more species you're likely to see. Kent does pretty well for starlings and house sparrows, although numbers are nothing like they used to be. Kent has also seen more great tits in recent years, and more greenfinches too.

At this time of year, also look out for hedgehogs feeding on worms as dusk falls and for butterflies like common blues and large whites.

Q And what are the most exotic?

A Birds like swifts and house martins might not seem exotic but they've made incredible journeys from Africa to get here. Warblers will have done the same. They might not look much, but just listen to them sing – their song is one of my favourite sounds of summer.

The willow warbler's song is particularly beautiful, a descending harmony of notes that starts softly and ends with a fancy flourish.

From the other end of the globe, look out for redwings and fieldfares from Scandinavia, especially if you've got bird-feeders. Both look a bit like song thrushes, in fact they're related to them, but redwings have rusty-red flanks, and fieldfares have orangey-yellow breasts.

Q Is climate change a factor for local wildlife?

A I've been told off for using the analogy of canaries down the mine before – mainly because it's a terrible pun – but that's exactly what wildlife is, especially birds, when it comes to detecting the impact climate change is having on our world.

Last year, an RSPB (Royal Society for the Protection of Birds) and BTO (British Trust for Ornithology) study found that chaffinches are now laying eggs about a week earlier than they did in the mid-1960s, and that blue tits, robins and swallows are showing similar patterns. It might not seem much, but birds like blue tits only have one brood per year, and they actually time it to coincide with the emergence of caterpillars. The last few years have seen a shortage of caterpillars at this crucial time because the chicks have arrived too early.

Q How can people spot rarer creatures such as badgers?

A Contact Kent Wildlife Trust, who'll put you in touch with some good badger-watching sites. If you have badgers using your garden, keep an eye out around dusk and into the evening, as this is when they're most likely to forage for food. Badgers are very social creatures, so they'll also use this time to play – a marvellous sight if you're lucky enough to see it.

If you reckon badgers are in the area, you can encourage them by putting food out – they love peanuts especially. While it's not great to feed them loads of sugary things, they also have a remarkably sweet tooth, so putting out the odd bit of cake will be much appreciated.

Q How did you get involved in wildlife conservation?

A I grew up in the Cotswolds and spent endless summers as a child peering under rocks, digging about in the dirt, and generally driving my mum potty with all the wonders I'd found. I remember finding a fossil once and sending it off to the Really Wild Show, hoping the show's presenter Chris Packham would knock on my door. Now I'm working for the RSPB, Chris is our vice-president and I've been lucky enough to meet him.

Festival organisers' £1m ticket splashout

NEARLY half of all tickets for Kent's biggest music festival of the summer have been given away FREE with a flimsy celeb-backed raincoat worth just £10.

Organisers behind the star-studded Hop Farm event in Paddock Wood next weekend stunned music fans earlier this week when the unbelievable offer of a pair of complimentary weekend passes, worth £250, was tacked onto sales of blue and grey designer 'Splashmacs' on a budget fashion website.

But they have denied claims the event was selling poorly – despite some fans who already snapped up tickets reacting furiously to news of the offer.

The 20,000-capacity event takes place next weekend with a big-hitting line-up including the likes of Paul Weller, The Fratellis, Editors and Echo and the Bunnymen.

A remarkable 6,000 weekend tickets – which normally sell for £125 each – have been promised to buyers who paid for a colourful bad weather cover worth less than a tenth of the ticket's value.

The MandMDirect site was flooded with so many customers on Tuesday trying to get their hands on the Splashmac, it sold out and switched the ticket offer to a luminous towel, worth £9.77.

A few hours later and 1,000 had gone, meaning another 2,000 people could snap-up Hop Farm passes. That's a total of 8,000 tickets given away as part of the promotion – or £1million's worth of potential sales.

The website reported that the closing date to claim tickets was June 29. All those taking advantage of the offer had to do was pay £16 for a camping permit.

Hop Farm Festival chiefs who pride themselves on their "no sponsors, no branding" approach have denied the extraordinary offer was merely a stunt to get rid of unwanted tickets.

EXCLUSIVE

BY GARETH DORRIAN

They claim the giveaway was a stroke of generosity by festival boss and famous promoter Vince Power and a drive to raise money for a good cause – but didn't prove the Hop Farm Festival was a flop which hard-up punters didn't want to attend.

All funds raised from the sale of three thousand £9.99 Splashmacs and 1,000 towels will go to the Teenage Cancer Trust charity.

Festival spokesman Ian Roberts said: "Vince Power is just an incredibly generous man. He has decided to give away tickets with every purchase of a Splashmac.

Sold out

"I don't think anyone will have a problem giving money to a reputable and worthy cause. Certainly we live in difficult times and music festivals are in a difficult position.

"But we are sure the Hop Farm Festival is an incredibly strong event with a fantastic line-up that people in Kent will really enjoy. A great weekend of top bands and entertainment is in store."

A customer service worked for the MandMDirect website admitted: "We've been inundated with calls about the Splashmac, it's an unbelievable offer. Some people have bought two or three of them, meaning they could have six tickets for the Hop Farm."

Some fans who have paid for tickets are furious. Emily Dorman, 23, from Maidstone, said she had struggled to raise the cash to buy a pair of tickets and couldn't believe the Splashmac offer.

She added: "I scrimped and saved to get these tickets and then I hear they're being dished out with a raincoat. It's not fair, to be honest. I just hope the festival is as good as they say it's going to be."

MAKING A SPLASH: Former Atomic Kitten singer Jenny Frost models a Splashmac

MandMDirect spokesman Ed Green told Kent on Saturday: "The Splashmacs have been designed and modelled by very famous people. We teamed up with the Hop Farm Festival to give people a brilliant chance to see some fantastic bands and raise money for charity at the same time.

"The Splashmacs sold out very very quickly, the pick-up has been phenomenal. There were only 3,000 of them. But we have ordered more to be delivered. We temporarily switched the project to the towels and all 1,000 sold out."

Vince Power has stated he intends the Hop Farm Festival to be a long-term project and one which would put Kent "on the map".

SNAP AWAY: Authorities say taking pictures of your children at sports day does not breach the Data Protection Act

Privacy watchdog gives thumbs up to sports day photos

PARENTS who take photographs of their children at sports days and school plays are acting completely within the law – a privacy watchdog has ruled.

Local authorities, including Kent County Council, have been told that mums and dads are allowed to take shots for the family album – and that it's no breach of the Data Protection Act.

Relatives wanting to take pictures at public events have often been told that they are breaking the rules.

But the Office of the Information Commissioner last week said this interpretation was simply wrong.

It ruled that any snap taken for the family photograph album would normally be acceptable. This guidance can be used to challenge any bans enforced by councils as many schools stage their annual sports days.

Guidance has been sent to education authorities across the country. It reads: "Fear of breaching the provisions of the Act should not be wrongly used to stop people taking photographs or videos which provide many with much pleasure.

"Where the act does apply, a common sense approach suggests that if the photographer asks for permission to take a photograph, this will usually be enough to ensure compliance."

Egg-stremely good fun on the free-range farm

RACHEL MCATHY finds out more about the happy lives of egg-laying chickens

CAMPAIGNS for free-range egg production have swept across the nation, endorsed by celebrity chefs and supported by some of the country's biggest stores.

Now rearing your own chickens, for the freshest eggs around, has become one of the country's fastest growing hobbies, which is good news for one farmer.

Doug Wanstall runs Bank Farm in Aldington, near Ashford, and it is from here that he pioneered a local food distribution hub that now supplies Kent produce across the county and in London.

But much of his success is down to the work of an army of 30,000 free-range chickens.

With access to 100 acres of land, they live a carefree life – popping out around 178,500 eggs a week.

But it is the nation's love of our feathered friends that has boosted business the most.

"People seem to be more emotionally attached to their chickens than anything else, which is nice for us," he said. "It is quite bizarre."

Collecting the eggs follows an almost military procedure. The eggs are laid into nesting boxes and then roll down onto a conveyor belt before being examined, graded and boxed ready for sale. But the trickiest job is getting every bird back to the roost at night.

"They get let out at 7am and we take it in turns to bring them in again at dusk," he said. "It's my turn at the moment to round them up, and it's not easy. It's often 10pm before the little darlings are ready to go to bed."

Programmes by celebrity chefs such as Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall, who spearheaded a free-range chicken campaign, helped boost interest in Mr Wanstall's business. It also led to the BBC using Mr Wanstall for its egg needs.

Chickens that are free to roam get a much more varied and nutritious diet, whereas yolks from caged hens are often injected with artificial colours to give them the glow only grass can naturally give.

Despite more and more people rearing their own 'backyard' chickens, Mr Wanstall said business is good.

In fact, to keep up with demand, he has started supplying people with the chickens and the know-how to 'lay their own'.

"As long as they have a suitable amount of land, anyone can have chickens," he said. "There is nothing like getting eggs fresh every morning, you can't beat it."

"Although you have to be prepared for the chickens' fairly destructive nature when it comes to grass."

Even the reject eggs do not go unused and are donated to Port Lympne Wild Animal Park, in return for hefty amounts of elephant dung for use as fertilizer.

Mr Wanstall's great-grandfather bought the farm, which has passed down through the generations, in 1918.

His father still works on the farm, as well as his uncle – it is truly a family business.

Since he took over, Mr Wanstall's dreams of getting local produce more readily available have become a reality. He now supplies hospitals, schools, hotels, food stores and restaurants in Kent and London. He also buys products from local farmers and sells them on to a range of customers interested in local food.

Despite economic struggles earlier in the year, which ended his supplies to Asda stores in Kent, he still provides the supermarket with 20,000 eggs a month.

• Mr Wanstall's eggs can be purchased online at www.foodforkent.co.uk – your one-stop shop for all your locally produced, and sourced food and drink.

Win a luxury hamper of Kentish delights

YOU have until the end of July to be in with a chance of winning a luxury hamper of Kent food and drink.

To tie in with 'Hop to Your Local Shop' week, Produced in Kent is hoping to encourage people to make the most of their local farm shops and independent food retailers.

To be in with a chance of winning, you must supply the name of the village or town you live in and the nearest farm shop online at www.producedinkent.co.uk.

Julie Monkman, manager of Produced in Kent said: "We want to shout about the benefits and pleasures of shopping in your local farm shop or independent food retailer."

"Shopping locally is also a lot more fun and it's cheaper than the supermarket."

Research shows £10 spent locally is worth £25 to the local economy, as opposed to £10 spent in a supermarket, which is worth just £14 to the local economy.

The competition ends on July 31.

Plenty of places to buy local

THERE are a host of farmers' markets taking place across the county in the coming week.

On Tuesday, Hildenborough market runs from 9-11am, and Capel-le-Ferne will have stalls running from 10am-1pm.

Deal is holding its market on Wednesday, from 9am-noon.

On Thursday, the county is spoilt for choice with five market hosts. Shipbourne market will run from 9-11am, Whitfield from 9am-noon, Bexley Heath from 9am-3pm, Rolvenden from 10am-noon and Chartham from 2.30-5pm.

Again on Friday there are plenty of venues to choose from. At Bromley the stalls will run from 9am-5pm, Edenbridge from 9.30-11.30am, Challock from 1-4pm, Egerton from 2-4.30pm and Aylesham from 2-5pm.

See www.kentfarmersmarkets.org.uk for full listings.

foodforkent.co.uk We are committed to adding more local suppliers to our online service and any local business or producer that wishes to join our campaign should contact us at foodforkent.co.uk or email us at feedback@kosmedia.co.uk

Enfants cordiale forge green link across Channel

WALK THE CHALK: Dover Grammar pupils and their French counterparts birdwatching at Samphire Hoe

MORE than 500 pupils from Dover and Calais teamed up to explore the Kent coast in a cross-Channel environmental project.

Pupils from Dover Grammar School for Boys, which has eco-school status, and a French school that has a green network group called Club Eden, met at the Grand Burstin Hotel in Folkestone.

Kent County Council and French authority the Conseil General du Pas-de-Calais gave the students an official welcome before the youngsters took to the stage to talk about their schools' environmental efforts.

Pupils then split into three groups for their afternoon activities. One group explored the Whinless Down in Dover, navigating their way between marker posts on a specially drawn map.

Each post had the name of a tree or shrub next to it so the children could fill in activity forms about what they had seen on their trek.

Group two took part in a guided walk from Capel to Samphire Hoe, where they learnt about the area and heard how ships and aircraft were detected from the cliffs in the 1920s and '30s. The third group learnt about the creation of Samphire Hoe and looked at the birdlife and chalk art while learning about the geology of the area.

■ BY MARIJKE COX

The event was part of the year-long Channel Hop programme which was organised by KCC and the Conseil General du Pas-de-Calais.

Myriam Caron, Channel Hop project manager for KCC, said: "Kent and Pas-de-Calais share many links and this is a really great way for young people from both regions to come together, find out more about their Channel neighbours and develop new friendships."

"We hope this will be the start of a long-term relationship between our schools which are just a short hop from each other."

The Channel Hop project arranges events in both regions and later this year will help celebrate the centenary of the first cross-Channel flight by Louis Bleriot in 1909.

For more information about the scheme or the history of the two areas, visit www.thechannelhop.co.uk.

BREAK TIME

Passionate about keeping the flame alive

SECONDARY schools across the Dover district have joined together to create activities relating to the Olympic Games.

Pass the Passion, held at Sandwich Technology School, saw pupils coming up with ways to welcome the Olympic flame to the UK – should it come through Dover in 2012. Students – including Ryan Henderson, pictured below – had the chance to handle one of the Olympic torches that was run through Dover in 1948. Children from Priory Fields Primary School performed the Pass the Passion song, written at a previous torch meeting, with two pupils on recorders.

Eight-year-old Ryan Hanson, from River School, was also congratulated for winning the Olympic torch mural competition. About 6,000 entries were received from 44 primary schools across Dover, Deal and Sandwich.

The winning piece is to be created over the summer holidays through family workshops, aided by a professional artist, before being shown around the area and displayed at De Bradelei Wharf, Dover.

Discussion group only hits the pocket rather than shocking drivers into watching their speed

Speed workshop was slow to put the message across

IT'S not that often that I get the chance to spend a morning in a room with 18 other convicted criminals, but as a result of an incident with a London speed camera a few months back I found myself in Ealing attending a speed awareness workshop.

Quite frankly, it was an outrage that I was there in the first place. I was clocked doing 34mph in a 30 zone and as Ray, our cheerful lecturer for the day, told me: "You were unlucky that is the lowest speed you have to get to end up at one of these things."

As a first time marginal offender I was given two options. Pay the £60 fine and end up with three points or pay £95 for the chance to visit a London office block and listen to Ray for a couple of hours. The police would then consider the matter dealt with.

I've always been pretty smug about having a clean licence; it has been one of the few things in life I could point to as a sign of my obvious merits as a fine upstanding citizen, so I plumped for the trip to Ealing.

The first session was spent looking at a computer screen showing driving scenarios in which various hazards present themselves.

The film was shot from the driver's point of view. Whoever had taken out the motor that day was very lucky to have made it to work without killing the various cyclists, toddlers on scooters, mums, guide dogs and grannies all leaping off the kerb in front of them.

After being assessed by the computer it concluded that I was average at pretty well everything when it came to driving. Although it did tell me I needed to lower my cruising speed.

In the second session Ray discussed with the group how we should all be more aware of speed and the consequences of being fractionally over the limit in the event of an accident.

I had been warned beforehand that I was likely to see graphic images of bodies torn apart in motoring accidents. Instead we all took part in a group discussion on why we sometimes go too fast. And this was my problem. Let's be honest, we were all there because we wanted to maintain our clean licence, not some desperate desire to learn about speed.

The least the organisers of these things could have done is shaken us out of our complacency. We deserve to be shocked and have a sleepless night because we have been confronted by the damage a car can do to a flimsy human body. I may have avoided getting the points, but avoiding the guilt if I ever killed someone because of my driving is a much harder dodge to pull off.

The only people who are really benefitting from this exercise are the company contracted to carry out these workshops.

WIN £2,500 off a conservatory

IT'S the perfect way to improve your home – giving you extra space and flooding your living area with natural light.

And now you could be sitting pretty this summer courtesy of a fantastic competition with KOS Media and Britelite.

Britelite, Kent's largest independent home improvement company, has been famous for the past 39 years.

In this time it has built an enviable reputation for quality installations in both the window and conservatory arenas. And with just a little thought and planning, a Britelite conservatory can transform your home.

Britelite install a fantastic range of conservatories to suit all tastes, homes and gardens:

Sun-lounge conservatories

This is always popular, both as glass to ground and dwarf wall styles. A surprisingly affordable way to extend your home and blend your living area into your garden, Britelite can provide you with a variety of comfort options, such as ridge ventilation, roof vents and special heat-reducing roofing materials.

Victorian conservatories

The classic design of a Britelite Victorian conservatory enhances virtually any style of property; the steeply pitched roof gives a feeling of space, allowing maximum light in, regardless of the season.

Edwardian conservatories

The beauty of a Britelite Edwardian conservatory is that whilst it is an attractive extension to your property, with its sophisticated high-pitched roof design, it also gives you the maximum possible floor space.

Combination conservatories

The unique design of these mean it is tailored exactly to your needs – you might like to combine a Victorian conservatory with a sun lounge conservatory or perhaps two Victorian conservatories together? With the extra space available, you can use your Britelite conservatory for dual purposes, such as a sitting area or even to house that luxurious swimming pool you've always wanted!

Now we have teamed up with Britelite to offer six lucky winners the chance to win vouchers to spend at Britelite. The first prize is a £2,500 Britelite conservatory voucher.

TALK TIME

MIKE LANGLEY

The programme manager for new-builds at P&O talks about that champagne moment when a ferry is launched

How did you get involved with P&O Ferries?

As an engineering cadet. I worked my way up to chief engineering officer on the Dover ferries and then came ashore to the fleet department.

What does your job involve?

Co-ordination, planning, communication – and a little gentle persuasion. To design and build ships is about getting the best out of large numbers of people in different parts of the business, bringing their efforts together in the right sequence, on time and on budget. I pull it all together.

What makes P&O Ferries different?

It takes a long-term view, invests huge amounts and builds relationships. That sets P&O apart in its approach to the industry, customers and employees.

Will P&O Ferries ride out the recession?

Of course. The company dates back to 1837 so it isn't our first challenge and it won't be the last.

Three most important things for a ferry company?

The right people on the right routes with the right ships.

Hardest part of the job?

Travel to the shipyard in Finland is awkward and I don't sleep well there in the summer – it just doesn't get dark.

And the best part?

Seeing ships sail into Dover for the first time. Then hearing the words: "I name this ship," as champagne smashes against the side. Magic every time.

YOUR LETTERS

Time to derail this EU gravy train

If people think MPs at Westminster cost us millions, they had better put a stop to the following ludicrous situation.

Members of the European Parliament at Brussels, of which there are more than 700 representing all 27 member countries, get the following, funded mostly by British taxpayers who give the biggest contribution to the EU's annual running costs.

Each MEP costs £1.8 million a year. They each can claim up to £363,000 annually in allowances without providing receipts. When leaving the parliament, they receive pensions of between £175,000 and £235,000.

And to close offices, they get £55,000 to lay off staff and a further £30,000 to help assist them back into the "real world".

And then there are the members of the European Commission, who get greater perks plus the cost of moving the entire Brussels staff to Strasbourg once every month for a couple of days, just to please the French.

Weather extremes will be unbearable

The Met Office, in its new climate change report, expects wetter winters in Kent and Medway and much hotter, drier summers.

Overall, this may be good for tourism, but extremely bad for many forms of agriculture.

Farmers and growers will be forced like never before to invest in means of capturing and using rainfall for use in long dry spells.

The prediction of one in six homes becoming at risk of flooding is quite stunning. The Met Office says sea levels around the UK rose by about 1mm a year in the 20th century. The rate for the 1990s and 2000s has been higher. A report by the World Development Movement has already indicated the emissions of the 1990s and 2000s could lead to a five-metre sea level rise rather than the original prediction of one metre.

Also, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development has indicated it expects the South East to be as dry as the Sahara by 2030 if emissions are not cut drastically.

The implications for Kent are severe as our climate will move towards extremes: longer periods of heavy rainfall in winter; hotter and drier spells in summer.

We face the prospect of regular winter flooding and summer droughts. Our natural environment, built environment and agriculture will all suffer unless we cut greenhouse gas emissions.

Steve Dawe, Kent Green Party

Job done, move on

Let's draw a line under the MPs' expenses scandal now. How many small items claimed for can we get outraged about? It was good work by the Telegraph to reveal the abuses, but the story has run its course.

I do hope, however, that those members who feel tempted in future to clear a moat or build a duck island realise what will happen if anyone finds out.

John Reilly, by email

What about banks?

The scandal over MPs' allowances provoked outrage, but the sums are small in comparison with the misuse of money by bankers. Everyone seems to have forgotten how these people who ruined the economy kept on awarding themselves huge sums in bonuses even as people's mortgages and savings collapsed. The economy was supposed to be collapsing around us a few months ago and now we don't even hear such alarms and forecasts of doom as we were doing. Has everyone forgotten the predictions of a new Great Depression – or was it all rubbish in the first place?

Maria Whiting, by email

Even MPs must eat

Why is there such an outrage over the small items of food claimed by MPs as part of their expenses?

Where I work one of the few things allowed to be claimed back are small sums for breakfast if you have an early start or dinner for a late finish.

Paul Forbes, by email

Isolated by rail cuts

The new high-speed train is certainly going to make the journey from some Kent towns into London more convenient.

But I hope we do not see the services which currently run, especially off-peak, being phased out.

That would make many villages in the county inaccessible by public transport and detract from the quality of life in places which were previously desirable to live in.

If trains no longer stop at places such as Newington, Headcorn and Sandling you will see the value of property deflate considerably, which is not good news. It will stop people getting to work and going on pleasure trips unless they use cars.

Proper services linking small communities with towns and cities need to run alongside the express trains for everyone to benefit.

Robert Jones, by email

New balls, please

Is anyone else fed up to the back teeth with Wimbledon? In a World Cup or European Championship summer it is mercifully ranked right at the bottom of the sporting ladder – where it belongs.

But this year we have an Ashes tournament coming up and it is all we are hearing about.

Bring back Tim Henman. At least he used to go out in the early rounds and it was all over quicker. As it is there is no stopping it dragging on. It may be just a fortnight but it seems to have been on for months.

Ian Paynter, by email

Still teaching world to sing

The New Seekers will be visiting Kent on their 40th-anniversary tour. Neill Barston talks to Paul Layton, the band's longest-serving member

NEW SEEKERS

Saturday, July 11
Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone

THERE are few if any musicians who can claim their musical career gained a helping hand from the late, great Doors frontman Jim Morrison.

But so it was for former child actor Paul Layton, whose encounter with the iconic American singer left quite an impression on him during his early 20s.

"Jim interviewed me as the 'new boy' on his group's record label, Elektra. He was over in England doing some gigs at the Roundhouse in London which were great.

"I was a big fan of The Doors and he was a magnetic character, interviewing me with a crate of beer by his side!" said Paul, whose brief stint as a solo artist was not destined to meaningfully trouble the charts.

He could easily have returned to acting, having starred in a range of stage and screen projects including Judy Garland's final movie, I Could Go On Singing, and Dixon of Dock Green (co-incidentally marrying the great-niece of its star Jack Warner).

Yet his Jewish family was behind his chosen career path and Paul joined a revised line-up of the New Seekers, courtesy of Bee Gees producer Ossie Byrne, who had worked on one of his solo releases.

"When I applied to join the group I couldn't actually play bass, but like any actor I said that I could, so it was a case of me just asking people I knew to help me learn the tracks.

"They hadn't yet had any commercial success. I joined at the same time as Lyn Paul and we had some great times touring," revealed the Hertfordshire-based musician.

The group, who are on their 40th-anniversary tour, enjoyed a golden period in the early 70s, scoring several top-10 hits including Beg Steal and Borrow, with which they represented Britain at the Eurovision Song Contest, and their most famous singles, I'd Like to Teach The World To Sing, revised from the 'I'd like to Buy the World a Coke' TV advert.

It proved a huge No 1 hit and remains in the top-100-selling singles in the UK. Its influence has lingered, with rockers Oasis borrowing its simple yet jaunty melody for their album track Shakermaker.

They were reportedly forced to pay its writers $500,000, to which Noel Gallagher commented that "the band just drinks Pepsi now".

These days, 62-year-old Paul has far more time to spend with his family, including his singer-songwriter daughter Lucy.

His other great passion is getting out on the golf course, which touring occasionally allows. But as the longest-serving member of the band, it's never far from his thoughts.

There been many changes in personnel down the years (including a split in the mid-70s), but they have survived far longer than many acts could ever hope for.

"Though our early days were great, there was a lot of pressure, so now we are just really enjoying ourselves for the 40th-anniversary tour.

"There are no problems of egos within the band and we're putting out a greatest-hits album on which we've recorded some new tracks along with some of the old material, which is something we've not done in a long time.

"The audiences have been very good to us and we enjoy meeting them all with signings at the end of the show, which we'll be doing down in Folkestone."

Modfather heads a stellar line-up at two-day festival

MODFATHER: Paul Weller will wrap up the festival

THE Hop Farm Festival is just three days away – and tickets are still available.

The Paddock Wood two-day, which kicks off on Saturday, boasts 50 of the top bands, DJs and solo artists from across the globe, and with a weekend ticket costing just £125, I make that £2.50 per artist.

That's £2.50 to watch the Modfather Paul Weller bring the main stage to a close on Sunday night.

For less than the price of a pint you could watch up-and-coming singer/songwriter Florence and the Machine on the opening day.

British favourites The Fratellis, Pigeon Detectives, The View and Ash all join Florence on the Saturday line-up.

Sunday brings the Editors, Doves, Super Furry Animals and Mystery Jets to Kent.

Dance fans have also been catered for, with Etienne De Crecy, Alex Gopher and Scratch Perverts all taking to the decks.

The line-up across all three stages is so strong that it leaves Hop Farm ticket holders with a number of difficult decisions.

Late night Sunday could be spent in front of the main stage with Paul Weller, by the dance stage and 2ManyDJs or the third stage with British Sea Power.

Mid-afternoon Saturday sees Brit pop veterans Ash and breakthrough rock trio The Joy Formidable take to separate stages at the same time.

And this is just the tip of the iceberg. Too much choice.

The Hop Farm Festival stands alone in the overcrowded festival market, offering an event free from ticket registration, VIP areas, branding and sponsorship.

This year the festival offers a weekend experience of boutique camping, top-notch food and traditional ales.

The Hop Farm Festival takes place at The Hop Farm in Paddock Wood on Saturday July 4 and Sunday July 5. Weekend tickets cost £125, with day tickets priced at £65.

Shia's transformed into Hollywood's hottest star

■ BY SHEREEN LOW

SHIA LaBeouf has gone from jobbing child actor to international superstar almost as quickly as a car can morph into a robot.

He's now one of the hottest young actors in Hollywood and is commanding the column inches to go with it. In the weeks leading up to the release of Transformers: Revenge Of The Fallen, the stories have been rife.

"I'm living a meaningless life," shouted one magazine headline. Another claimed, "I saw my parents have sex", crediting his sense of humour to his parents' hippy, carefree lifestyle. He's been labelled an alcoholic and called "resentful" and "foul-mouthed".

Yet when I speak to him, sitting in a posh London hotel, the 23-year-old is keeping that side of him, if it exists, firmly hidden. In fact, his lips are almost as tightly buttoned as the shirt he's wearing.

Shia says he takes the attention in his stride and even reveals the details of one article that made him laugh out loud: "Reading that I found my mum very attractive. That was hysterical," he says with a smile.

Life has changed out of all proportion for the LA-born actor since the release of Transformers, the highest-grossing film of 2007.

Despite acting since he was 12, the leading role in the blockbuster catapulted Shia into one of Tinseltown's hottest – and most talked-about – young stars.

It won him awards and a starring role in Indiana Jones And The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull, sparking speculation that he'll take over from Harrison Ford once he's done with the franchise.

The attention is sure to get even more

RIISING STAR: Shia LaBeouf has been catapulted into the spotlight thanks to the Transformers films intense with the Transformers sequel, in which he reprises his role as plucky teenager Sam Witwicky, who gets caught in the robot battle between the Autobots and their Decepticon enemies.

"It's been great," he says. "My trailer was bigger this time! It's flattering, it's the best kind of review to be asked to do it again."

He adds: "It doesn't feel as crazy [this time]."

First time, it was figuring a lot of things out – we were flying by the seat of our pants.

"We didn't know what it would be like and this time we've battened down the hatches. We're just getting better at it."

He says: "These movies are adventurous to make, you know. It's not just an adventure to watch, but it's a real adventure to make."

It turned out to be quite a rough ride for Shia, who preferred to do a lot of his own stunts but suffered quite a few injuries during the making of the film.

"I broke my hand, I almost went blind, and sprained my knee. It was a rough shoot. The pace is the worst thing, just the non-stop shooting. But I feel good now."

YOUR TV REVIEW

BY TOM BETTS

ALAN CARR CHATTY MAN
Channel 4, 10pm, Sunday
HOTEL BABYLON
BBC One, 9pm, Friday

IT'S hardly a new format, but I have to hand it to Alan Carr – his new Channel 4 chat show is a winner.

It's perfect end of weekend stuff, before you doze off to sleep with the Monday morning blues looming.

Three shows in and all have been rather good so far.

Interviews with Bruce Forsyth, Samuel L Jackson, Heather Graham and girl-kisser Katy Perry have all been a hoot and only the Ivana Trump chat has stalled, though that wasn't the host's fault.

Her broken English didn't quite gel with the wonky-toothed comic's camp down-to-earth humour and made for uncomfortable viewing as she attempted to smile her way through the show before collecting her appearance fee.

Carr has that self-deprecating persona that never really loses its appeal.

Nor is he afraid to risk offending the guests he sits opposite, which is also a good thing and makes for a more exciting crop of interviews.

For my money he is much funnier than Jonathan Ross, even if he is back on form post Manuelgate.

Whereas Ross can come over as somewhat self-obsessed, perhaps not the best attribute for a talk show host, Carr seems genuinely interested in what his guests have to say and is a very funny bloke, which always helps.

His stand-up show Tooth Fairy, still occasionally repeated on E4, is one of those stand-out moments that convince you there is more to someone's talent than prattling about with hairy bloke Justin Lee Collins and ripping the latest crop of Big Brother hopefuls.

CHATTY BOX: Alan Carr's new Channel 4 talk show proves just what a talent he really is Ratings have been good and deservedly so. It would be great if this were given a slightly earlier time slot for more people to enjoy, but would likely suffer if that happened.

Some of the more risqué humour would have to be toned down and that essence of naughtiness would have to be binned.

BBC One has once again wheeled out Hotel Babylon, which seems amazing because it is just so ruddy awful.

When a prime-time show relies on such heady names as Nigel Harman, Chris Bisson and page three luvvies Lucy Pinder and Michelle Marsh to carry it, the alarms bells must surely start to ring. The storylines are often preposterous and the dialogue nothing short of painful.

This is billed as a drama, which is odd as the proceedings are in no way dramatic or interesting for that matter.

YOUR WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY RUSSELL GRANT

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19)

BE realistic when it comes to family. Nobody is going to change overnight. This is especially true of a forgetful female. Don't trust them with important duties or expensive items. This will probably make more work for you, but it's better than setting everybody up for a disappointment.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Aquarius 09067-531762

TAURUS (Apr 21-May 21)

YOU'RE getting mixed signals from an authority figure. The best way to avoid trouble is to get their instructions in writing and be sure to date them or you'll have to defend yourself against unfair accusations. A sympathetic friend helps you decompress after work.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Taurus 09067-531753

LEO (Jul 24-Aug 23)

A RELATIONSHIP is showing signs of strain. The object of your affection needs to be more consistent. Being trifled with brings out the worst in you. Happily, there are some other romantic prospects on the horizon, so if this union doesn't last, you'll quickly start another.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Leo 09067-531756

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22)

YOU'RE on an emotional rollercoaster, and it's not for the first time. Someone who is dear to your heart is driving you crazy with their behaviour. At first it was fun trying to make sense of their whims. Now, it's just exhausting. Maybe it's time to take a temporary break from each other.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20)

YOUR intuition is telling you there is something wrong with a relative or neighbour. You must be sure to press them if they keep insisting everything is fine. It's possible they're struggling with a serious problem. Offer to help with chores as a means to take some pressure off.

GEMINI (May 22-Jun 22)

BEWARE of falling under a guru's spell. Although their advice is seductive, it can pull you into a dark place. Be especially alert to any pleas for money. You have a better use for your hard-earned cash. A boss or authority figure may promise more than they can deliver.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Gemini 09067-531754

VIRGO (Aug 24-Sep 23)

BE honest when it comes to your job. There may be a limited future with this position. Promises of raises and promotions that never come true are warning signs. Listen to a close friend's advice with regard to work prospects. Adopting some of their behaviour could benefit you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21)

A COLLEAGUE could be saying one thing to your face and then gossiping behind your back. Be very careful what you tell them. It may be best to cut off all unnecessary contact. True, you have to work together, but that doesn't mean you need to be friendly.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Sagittarius 09067-531760

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 20)

WORKING with a group will not be easy. You're better off retreating to somewhere quiet where you can focus. It's possible you will blurt out a friend's secret by accident. If this happens, be sure to tell them that you betrayed their confidence. It may take awhile to be forgiven, though.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Aries 09067-531752

CANCER (Jun 23-Jul 23)

GO over bills with a fine-toothed comb as some erroneous charges could be made to your account. On the plus side, an impromptu trip allows you to travel to a glamorous locale. Be sure to take a smart evening outfit, as you never know who you're going to meet.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Cancer 09067-531755

LIBRA (Sep 24-Oct 23)

SOMEONE may be playing fast and loose with your heart. Take this flirt's declarations with a huge dose of salt. If you have a family, be very vigilant about keeping your promises. If you have to make a choice between attending a work or family matter, pick the latter.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 20)

Discover the wild west in Utah

■ BY MARGARET DAVIS

UTAH can be easily overlooked among the huge range of holiday destinations on offer in a country as vast as the United States.

Mention Salt Lake City to any Brit, and it will conjure up images of Mormons, weak beer and the 2002 Winter Olympics.

In fact, Utah has much more to offer than that, especially for holidaymakers wanting to escape the daily grind and shake off the cobwebs in a spectacular outdoor playground.

The western state is perhaps best known for skiing and winter sports, but remains a quite breathtaking rocky wilderness when there is no snow on the ground.

Yet even in the absence of snow, the area is a beautiful place to visit. In early October we were treated to the blazing reds and yellows of the autumn leaves – a perfect backdrop for pony trekking in the foothills nearby.

It was a fun way to see the countryside, and meant we could avoid crawling up the steep slopes ourselves. There could not have been a better remedy to soothe away the shop-soiled feeling of long-haul flights and jetlag.

This is the beginning of film-set style surroundings which leave visitors with a huge smile – and stopping every two minutes to take photos.

Dead Horse Point, half a mile from where the dramatic climax of Thelma And Louise was filmed, gives a jaw-dropping view, looking out over the Colorado River. Without the water, you could be forgiven for thinking you were on Mars.

But visitors do not just come to stand and stare. A wide range of outdoor activities are available throughout the year.

Moab, the small town where raft operator

EYE-CATCHING: The red, almost Martian, landscape of Utah leaves explorers stunned by their surroundings

Sheri Griffiths is based, attracts hordes of active types all through the summer and has a sprinkling of shops, bars and restaurants which cater for the crowds.

Once you've finished soaking up the atmosphere around Moab, a more relaxed river expedition awaits on the San Juan River, leaving from Bluff.

The archaeological trip will see your guide explain the spectacular geology of the surrounding area, with stops to see ancient paintings and ruins on the way.

However, both the boat trips come with a health warning: in the sun they would be fantastic (with all usual precautions in place), but in autumnal rain it gets cold, so bring waterproofs and warm clothes to avoid grumpy faces.

The rafting in particular will get you completely, utterly and absolutely soaked, even through the splash suits provided.

Coming back to urban surroundings, Salt Lake City is a pleasant and nicely laid-out town, with chances for fine dining and a night out in a bar, as well as good shopping during the day.

So when you plan your next holiday, give Utah a chance – you'll come back fully refreshed and fired up with a new enthusiasm for the outdoors.

PROPERTY NEWS

Now agents claim there's four buyers for every house

THERE are four house-hunters for every property for sale, according to estate agents who have analysed recent property trends.

Demand for property is rising faster than supply, with the number of house-hunters registered with estate agents increasing from 265 in April to 299 in May. But the average branch has fallen to 69 properties for sale in May, from 76 in April.

Gary Smith, president of the National Association of Estate Agents said: "NAEA members are showing that there are buyers a-plenty out there.

"More often than not these are also potential sellers who are at the beginning of the process – so there is bound to be a lag which creates a shortage of properties in the short term.

Significant

"With mortgage interest rates at historically low levels and prices now far more realistic than in previous years, home ownership in the UK seems to be set to lead the way out of the recession."

Buyers are still able to negotiate a discount, however, with the average selling price 6.3 per cent below the actual asking price.

The survey also found the number of first time buyers increased to 43 per cent in May – a significant increase on last month's 23 per cent.

Why more enquiries does NOT mean higher prices

■ BY NICK AMES

AVERAGE prices of new homes on the market have fallen for the first time in five months, according to a leading property company.

Despite several surveys suggesting house prices were set to rise during May, new sellers are still hesitant and the average asking price fell by 0.4 per cent over the last month to £226,436.

Rightmove has identified trends in property prices which are reflected in the desirability of what is on offer.

Miles Shippside, the company's commercial director, said: "It's a mistake to confuse the upturn in enquiries and sales with a return to a more normal market.

"As the best deals on property and mortgages are only open to the equity-rich, the new stock that agents are looking to attract has to match what these purchasers want to buy and can afford.

"Perennially popular areas with good schooling are in, while flats in large blocks and terraces requiring major works are out, meaning new sellers are having to adjust prices accordingly."

Although there has been a ten per cent rise in new sellers over the last three months, there is still a shortage of houses coming on to the market.

Rightmove also said that a north-south divide is beginning to grow in housing prices.

The number of new sellers in the southern regions of the UK are down by 45.3 per cent on the same period in 2008, while the rest of England and Wales has seen only a 40.1 per cent fall. A combination of lenders' risk bias towards southern deposit-rich buyers and less

LIMITED: Although there's been an increase in enquiries, there are warnings these are only coming from the equity-rich side of the market, with specific properties in mind fresh saleable stock would therefore suggest a speedier price recovery in the South, Rightmove added.

But although equity-rich buyers are snapping up properties, a large sector of the market is still being sidelined.

Mr Shippside said: "Property deals appear within the grasp of cash-strapped first-time buyers, but every rise in fixed rates frustratingly nudges them a bit further out of reach."

MOTORS NEWS

Greener plant grows greener Prius hybrid

TOYOTA launches an all-new, greener and more futuristic Prius on August 1 produced by a 'green' factory.

The petrol-electric hybrid is built in Japan at one of five Toyota global Eco-Factories designed to minimise environmental impact through energy saving, waste management and recycling.

Just as the new Prius (from £18,370) can use solar energy to cool its cabin when parked, half of the Tsutsumi plant's electricity comes from solar panels, while sunlight ducts boost interior lighting.

...and BMW launches greenest ever 3-Series

BMW has announced its most fuel-efficient and cleanest BMW 3-Series ever, attracting just £35/year road tax.

The new BMW 316d ES Saloon – on sale in September from £23,330 – features a 116bhp 1,995cc four-cylinder diesel offering 0-62mph of 10.9 seconds and an official 62.8mpg on the combined cycle with CO2 emissions of just 118g/km, helped by a six-speed manual gearbox and the green technologies of BMW's EfficientDynamics package including Stop-Start and energy recovery from braking.

Hyundai ships come in

AMBITIOUS Korean brand Hyundai will upset the motor industry establishment when June UK registration figures are announced.

It has embraced the Government-sponsored Scrappage scheme enthusiastically, promoting the i10 city car in particular – it sells from £4,995 through Scrappage.

Hyundai has sold 11,500 cars under the scheme and started a major operation in which four car ships will unload 5,100 cars in four weeks.

The first has just landed 1,100 i10s and this model is tipped to storm the UK top 10 seller list for June.

CHANGE OF TACT: Volkswagen is now putting its weight behind 'eco' petrol engines, using the twin forces of direct injection plus turbocharging which made diesel so popular

VW has change of heart with their 'eco' engines

HAVING done much to push diesel power, Volkswagen is now putting weight behind a return to petrol.

And it is using twin forces behind the diesel boom – direct injection of fuel plus turbocharging. The latter is nothing new, of course, but VW is now using it to boost small and relatively puny engines when needed, without harming overall fuel consumption and emissions.

It is also the perfect partner to VW's new generation direct injection technology, which will surely revolutionise the petrol engine in the same way that common rail direct injection transformed the diesel.

'DI' boosts compression, efficiency and pulling power, again without damaging the green credentials of the engine, while giving our VW Golf SE 1.4 TSI five-door (£16,520) test car all the sportiness most owners will ever desire.

With 120bhp on tap, it seemed to skip along and bowl around corners. The diesel equivalents output feels just as quick in the straight ahead, but the heavier engine shows up on the bends and undoubtedly wears tyres and front end bits more significantly.

This 'eco' petrol version can also average well over 40mpg and requires just £125/year in road tax – not bad when it costs considerably less than equivalent diesels.

The latest Golf carries over the excellent chassis from the previous model, which has allowed VW to apportion more interior budget this time, shown in high quality, improved seating, excellent yet lightweight sound insulation and superb ergonomics. The cabin also has far more space, without a significant increase in size.

VW offers its new Adaptive Chassis Control (ACC) system too, allowing three modes for suspension, steering and throttle response.

It is an impressive piece of tech and 'Sport' mode combines with the lively engine to deliver a cut-price GTI to the hands on the wheel – the downside is that ACC adds £705 to the price of the car.

On the other hand, you can afford this luxury: versions of our pumped up petrol Golf cost a £1,000 less than diesel counterparts and are slightly faster and more nimble.

With some buyers never fully convinced by the pro-diesel argument, the arrival of modern and greener petrol alternatives could re-ignite the whole petrol v diesel argument.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

BUDGET BUSTERS

EVERYONE wants to slash their motoring budget and perhaps downsize too, but there's no need to buy new, even if used prices on top economy cars have boomed as 'gas guzzler' values went bust. Neither must you give up on style; true, our choice here includes a couple of real motoring 'scrooge' options even though full of character, but BMW's Mini D can look after your wallet and street cred for a little more outlay upfront – you can be meaner and greener while making others green with envy.

FIAT PANDA

FIAT'S five-door city car shows that a highly space-efficient interior does not have to result in a utilitarian exterior. The compact Italian is also decent to drive, cheap to insure and costs peanuts to run. The original Panda of the 1980s was also cheap and cheerful, but didn't feature the cutting-edge technology and better build of its modern day counterpart. A lively turbodiesel – averaging more than 65mpg – and a rugged little 4x4 option only add to the Panda's attractions.

PEUGEOT 107

PEUGEOT'S smallest model is the best-seller of a joint venture three and five-door city car project that also spawned the Toyota Aygo and Citroën C1. All come from the same production line in the Czech Republic and, with minor styling tweaks, are modern, stylish, cheap to run and reliable. Launch prices were not as cheap as expected, but robust new car sales and second-hand values indicate the public is willing to pay to save money and the planet.

MINI D

USED values for the frugal yet lively diesel version of BMW's reborn Mini are steep, but the rewards are worth it; the car drives well, oozes class, will save money while you run it and be worth more when you sell. The downside is a relatively cramped interior in comparison with its exterior – the antithesis of its all-British forebear – and rarity when buying. A late 'Mark II' petrol version with BMW's eco-friendly 'Efficient Dynamics' package is a possible alternative though.

BE A 'PROPERTY PROFESSIONAL'

Regardless of the recession, a new European Directive now legally requires an estimated 2.5 million homes and commercial properties being rented, sold or built to have an Energy Assessment this year alone. And more 'green environmental' laws are coming!

For example next year nearly every commercial property with air-conditioning must have an Assessment before the January 2011 deadline.

Applicants are therefore required to train now as multi-skilled 'Property Professionals' to carry out commercial and air-conditioning Energy Assessments and many other roles such as Flood and Fire Risk Assessments, Energy Audits, Insulation Surveys, Property Valuations, Home Condition Reports, Public Buildings Assessments etc.

No previous experience is necessary, training to join this new growth industry can usually be taken around current job at our nationwide training centres approved by the Government-appointed Awarding Body for the Built Environment and is subsidised. On qualifying start your own energy business, work for other Assessment Providers or be available for potential full or part-time work through our Energy Assessor Panel with earnings of £50 to £1,200 per Assessment.

CRICKET

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

Kent Cricket League Division One

Hythe CC 1st XI v Ashford Town CC 1st XI

AN OUTSTANDING spell from Jago Pearson helped give Hythe only their second victory of the season as they beat Ashford Town by five wickets at The Grove.

Pearson took 7 for 46 as Ashford were bowled out cheaply, setting up a precious victory that took Hythe out of the bottom two.

The hosts opted to field first after winning the toss and the decision reaped dividends as Ben Dwyer dismissed Liam Tegg, Jason Boulter and James Watson to leave Ashford 23 for 3.

Shannon Fattore steadied the innings with a superb 87, sharing a substantial partnership with Stuart Paine to get Ashford back in the game. But Fattore's dismissal signalled the beginning of the end as the middle order and tail had no answer to Pearson's bowling.

With less than 200 to chase for victory, Hythe took as few risks as possible. Christopher Slee (31) and Richard Perkins (14) got them away to a steady start before a third wicket stand of 90 between Sam Butler (54) and Leon Morgan (47).

Jon Smith's 37 was the final nail in Ashford's coffin and despite being bowled by James Watson, it only prolonged the inevitable as Hythe reached their target in the 51st over.

Jago inspires Hythe to a commanding win

GREAT CATCH: Ashford wicketkeeper Gavin Hope shows off his reflexes in Saturday's five-wicket defeat to Hythe at The Grove

LOCAL CRICKET ROUND-UP

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION TWO

Sibton Park 1st XI v Harvel 1st XI

SIBTON Park moved well clear at the top of Division Two with a convincing 53-run victory against nearest challengers Harvel.

Opener Andy Allon top scored with 84 in a slightly disappointing Sibton innings, which saw them all out for 205 in the final over.

But five wickets from Steven Rowe ripped the heart out of Harvel's reply as they came up well short. Sibton's seventh victory out of eight extended their lead to 33 points.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION FOUR

Bromley Town 1st XI v Walmer 1st XI

A POOR batting display cost Walmer as they lost to Bromley in a low scoring game by 28 runs.

Bowling first at Hayes Lane, the visitors got off to a decent start. Barry Green took 4 for 56 and Peter Huntley 3 for 48 as Bromley were bowled out for just 151.

The total was vulnerable, but Walmer struggled. Opener Martyn North top scored with only 29 and a procession of low scores saw them all out for 123.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION ONE

Folkestone 1st XI v

Sandwich Town 1st XI

STRUGGLING Folkestone caused a surprise as they thrashed in-form Sandwich Town by nine wickets at Cheriton Road.

The visitors posted a competitive 222 for 8 from their 50 overs, with Vishaul Singh (68) top scoring.

But an impressive reply from Folkestone made light work of the victory target, which they reached with the loss of just one wicket. Ashok Kadam guided them home to finish unbeaten on 96, alongside Essex and Holland all-rounder Ryan ten Doeschate (69 not out).

KENT FEEDER LEAGUE EAST 1A

Nonington 1st XI v

Deal Victoria &amp; Barns Close 1st XI

NONINGTON leapfrogged Deal Victoria into second place in the table with a four wicket victory at Fredville Park.

Andrew Furness was the key man in Deal's innings, hitting 60 to give the visitors a platform.

But three wickets apiece from Josh Tutton and Rob Paton saw Deal slump to 165 all out. Good runs in Nonington's top order proved the difference and despite a flurry of wickets late on they got home with five balls to spare.

Harrop to help Deal end ten years of hurt

SILVERWARE: New Deal coach Mark Harrop wants success for the side next season

IF Deal Town endure another barren season in 2009-10 it will mean they have gone ten years since their last success – the famous FA Vase triumph at Wembley in 2000.

But new first-team coach Mark Harrop is determined to ensure that Deal's long wait for a trophy comes to an end next season.

After taking a season out from the game, following a five-year spell as a coach at Ramsgate, 41-year-old Harrop is eager to get back into the fray at the Charles Ground.

He said: "I know Deal haven't won anything for quite a while, but I went to see them a couple of times last season and with the team they've got they should certainly be doing a lot better than finishing 12th in the Kent League – especially as [manager] Derek Hares has added two or three very good players to his squad."

Hythe Town, plus Ramsgate defender Jake Eastwood are all expected to sign for Deal when they begin pre-season training this week.

Harrop – who enjoyed plenty of success during his long playing career, which included making over 400 appearances for Dover – said: "I have said to Derek [Hares] and chairman Stuart McCluskey that we definitely should be looking to win something next season, and preferably it will be the Kent League title."

"There's a lot of potential at Deal, what with their nice ground and new clubhouse, and I want to help them to start winning trophies again."

Deal's first pre-season friendly is at home to Suffolk side Needham Market on Sunday, July 12.

SAFE: Dover chairman Jim Parmenter (pictured) believes the club won't be affected by the collapse of Setanta

Dover chief says Setanta collapse won't hit Whites

DOVER Athletic chairman Jim Parmenter has assured supporters the collapse of television broadcaster Setanta will not directly affect the club.

The Irish television broadcaster, who signed a five-year deal with the Football Conference to screen 79 live games a season, went into administration last week.

With promotion to Blue Square South achieved last season, Dover were due to pick up £15,000 from the television deal.

Parmenter is disappointed his side will not feature on the box next season, but insisted the Setanta collapse will not affect the running of the club.

He told Yourdover: "Obviously we are disappointed by Setanta's collapse. It would have been nice to have had a couple of games on television and to be part of the deal."

Not budgeted

"The year after we were relegated from the Conference the first television deal came in and the year we come back into the Conference the deal has ended."

"However, we had not budgeted for the money from Setanta, so it would have been a bonus anyway. It shouldn't affect us."

Parmenter is content with the progress the club have made as the start of the Blue Square South season draws nearer. He believes Athletic will be in a position to announce more new additions soon.

He said: "I am happy with how pre-season has gone so far. Season ticket sales are up 20 per cent on last year and we already have 18 players signed up and ready to go."

"I think we will have a couple more additions to the squad in the coming weeks."

Manager Andy Hessenthaler returns from holiday next week and will run his eye over a number of trialists in training and pre-season friendlies.

Dover Athletic's first pre-season friendly will be at home to League Two side Barnet on July 11.

Business as usual despite Invicta financial turmoil

FOOTBALL

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

FOLKESTONE Invicta manager Neil Cugley will attempt to maintain a sense of normality when pre-season training begins tomorrow despite the threat of administration hanging over the club.

The Seaside's board were expected to decide to take the club into the special measures last night after failing to raise new investment for the coming season.

Cugley's squad will reassemble for the first time since April on Thursday as they begin their preparations for the new season in August.

The Invicta boss told Yourshepway he would carry on as usual despite the uncertainty.

Impact

He said: "All I'm concentrating on is getting the squad ready. Unless I'm told otherwise I'll get on with training."

"The players don't really get involved in things like this, they just want to get together and play. Hopefully it will all get sorted out and we can kick on from what we achieved last season."

Administration is unlikely to have a huge impact on the playing squad for the moment.

The contracts of the eight players signed up to the club do not start until August and would still be honoured, while none of the others have raised concerns with Cugley about the future of the club.

One implication of the financial worries is the breakdown of talks between Cugley and transfer targets, which the Cheriton Road boss admits is frustrating.

He said: "I was talking to players but they are not going to come if they don't know what's going on at the club. Players want a bit of security, it's disappointing as a manager but there's nothing much I can do about it."

The problems have not affected the signings made so far this summer, with Sam Marsh and Michael Yianni expected to join up with

JOB TO DO: Folkestone manager Neil Cugley pre-season training will resume at Cheriton Road (right) tomorrow despite the threat of administration hanging over the club their new team-mates tomorrow. Another potential signing is striker Jacob Arnold-Smith, who enjoyed a successful loan spell from Gillingham late last season. The youngster will join up with Invicta for pre-season training.

Despite the optimism, administration would see Invicta hit with an automatic ten-point penalty which would see them begin the Ryman South campaign rock bottom.

Cugley said: "Whatever will be will be. The main thing for everybody is the club survives."
